line tool for linux? recently i am trying to install "deep tech/3d modelling/texturing" on my ubuntu 16.10. (system requirement: 2+ cores, 8gb of ram) the installation is done, but i wonder where it installed. i try to locate command line tool "gimp-command-line-commands" by "whereis gimp-command-line-commands" but it does not return anything. does it mean that the command line tool is not installed and i have to download it?

thanks, i'll be very appreciated if anyone can give me any suggestion. a: to start the gimp from the terminal press ctrl + alt + t and write in the command line: gimp the command line window will appear. a: you can search for command line tools in ubuntu 16.04 lts and later by running the command: sudo apt-get show gimp-command-line-tools the output will be: package: gimp-command-line-tools priority: optional section: graphics installed-size: 12 maintainer: ubuntu developers architecture: amd64 depends: libglade2-gnome (>= 1.2), libgweather-common (>= 1.1.2) -- this package installs the command-line tools for the gimp. you can use the command line tools to load and unload modules, or run other commands in the gimp. a: for ubuntu 16.10 and later you can use the command: apt search --names-only gimp or apt-cache search --names-only gimp q: c# mvc does not create a validation summary i am learning mvc in c#. i have a employee, who can have multiple address. i want to create a view for employee, so that the employee will be able to enter his/her address and save to the db. here is the code
